Important Notes for Application

Starting December 1, 2025 – Omission of Certain Documents

For applications to change your status of residence from “Student” to “Engineer/Specialist in Humanities/International Services” or “Research,” in addition to the existing omission based on the category of your current institution, omission of certain documents will also be allowed if you meet any of the following conditions (same documents as Category 2 can be omitted):

Please note: This does not apply to employment under a dispatch arrangement.

- 1. Graduates (or expected graduates) of a Japanese university (including graduate schools and junior colleges).
2. Graduates of an overseas prestigious university ranked within the top 300 in at least two of the three major global university rankings.
3. Applicants who will work at an institution that currently employs a foreign national who has changed their status from “Student” to a work visa and has renewed their period of stay at least once while employed there.
