3. Stress

- Starting a new academic life often requires time for adjustment. You may find yourself trying too hard to adjust, getting sick easily, or becoming depressed with small matters. As an international student away from home, you may experience many challenges in Japanese culture, new friends from multicultural background, adjusting to new academic learning systems, and living on a limited budget. You may feel isolated because you cannot easily find support and comfort of family, friends, safe place, or stress managing activities that you had in back home.
- At such times, the following signs of stress may appear such as,
  - irritability     sleep problems     poor concentration
  - anxiety         depression

Stress Management and Prevention

- Cutting down your workload
- Talking to others friends and family
- Talking to your tutor, staff and teachers
- having a more healthy lifestyle (eat well, exercise, get enough sleep, spend some time socializing)

We are happy to work on the details of your stress management and preventative action plans together. Planning and Consulting/Counseling can be a part of illness prevention that we are promoting it to all university members. If you are experiencing Long-term stress, please consult with us.
